

Jurisprudential foundations of the need to support intuition

The testimony and testimony of witnesses is one of the most important proofs of criminal proceedings. Testimony in order to discover the truth puts the witness at risk and threat from the perpetrators of the crimes. In support of justice and the protection of the rights of citizens and the victim of crimes, especially in cooperation with the judiciary and the police, it is necessary and indispensable to support witnesses, which is a major responsibility of the Islamic government. If the testimony is one of the decisive evidence in proving the claim, it must be resolved by thinking about the measures, losses and losses, so that the testimony of witnesses is heard in full safety. Therefore, in this research, using the library method and field research, the foundations of jurisprudential necessity to support intuition are investigated based on jurisprudential sources (books, traditions, traditions, wisdom, and (jurisprudential views
